

National Science Week Photo Scavenger Hunt

To celebrate National Science Week we want you to find and photograph our local marine science. The photo scavenger hunt is a way to discover the amazing world around you and win an amazing prize while you're at it.

The prize is a limited edition LEGO® set of the CSIRO research vessel the Investigator. Only 100 of these sets have been designed and produced for Australia and we are lucky enough to have one set to give away.

You can find out more about the Marine National Facility and the construction of the Investigator research vessel at this site: <http://csirofrvblog.com/>

To win this limited edition prize all you have to do is take photos. We have included a list of local landmarks and marine species. Each item on the list is worth a set amount of points; if you take a photo of that item you get that many points. The winner will be the one with the most points. The trickier the photo is to take the more points the item is worth.

Guidelines

- You can only submit and receive points for one photo for each item.
- Photos are to be taken during the competition
- Submission of entries will be at the Marine Discovery Centre on Saturday August 18 between 10am and 3pm. Bring down your camera and cord or USB with the photos and we will upload them.
- All entries must be accompanied by a completed entry form

1st Prize

- LEGO® set of the RV Investigator
